Barre is traveling in the $4.80 class.

We notice that Pancho Villa has seized the Ginger Jar again and is shaking out trouble by the peck.

"Is Intended for Duration of War"—no, not a certain member of the educational set in Burlington.

Vermont deer declined to lend themselves to reducing the high cost of living; they wouldn't be shot for the purpose.

If the lights of the Great White Way in New York City are dimmed perhaps some of the human moths will keep away.

It is unfortunate that Pancho Villa of Mexico cannot vent his fighting spirit in Europe, on one side or the other. Just to get Villa out where he could get his punishment would be satisfactory.

The Teuton advance into northern Italy has been held up so long on the Piave river front that the Anglo-French reinforcements must have arrived. There is reason to hope that Italy is saved.

Many months ago the official report was sent out from Berlin that "not yet" had German submarines been sent to the American side of the Atlantic ocean. That "not yet" is getting stretched to the breaking point.

The street railway company in Springfield, Mass., has passed its dividends after having paid as high as 8 per cent per annum only seven years ago. The Barre &amp; Montpelier Traction company ought to take heart from that situation because Springfield is one of the most populous and thriving places in New England and might, therefore, be expected to give a fat living if any place could in these war times.

If you have not yet given anything to the Y. M. C. A. war work fund do not let another minute go by without doing your duty. Think of the more than one hundred Barre boys who are going to benefit by your contribution or to suffer deprivation if you and the remainder of the people do not give the help needed to carry on the splendid work of the Y. M. C. A. A few dollars contributed by you will go far toward insuring the completeness of this noble, unselfish purpose.

It is probable that the appeal of a Swiss newspaper to the emperor of Austria-Hungary to spare the art treasures of Venice will fall on deaf ears, or on ears that are constantly being boxed by the German kaiser as the owners thereof are held in close subjection by their master in Berlin. If the Italians loosen their hold on the Piave line their art treasures in Venice will be reduced to junk once the Teutons have finished with them. The Italians must hold that line in order to hold their treasures.

Whatever else they may be doing, the British are surely defending their possessions in Egypt and the Suez canal, for their victories in Palestine, lying to the northeast, are sending the enemy far back. Palestine in the hands of the Turks formed a menace to the British peace of mind as well as to the British property; and, once captured, Palestine will not be easily relinquished by the British government. That accounts for the prominence which apparently is directed toward the conquest of the Turkish forces in that section.

When Governor Keyes and Governor Graham met on Thursday in the middle of the new bridge over the Connecticut river at Woodsville, the New Hampshire chief executive probably took pains to explain to his Vermont colleague that he did not thereby waive in any degree the Granite State claim of ownership to high water mark on the west bank of the river.—Concord (N. H.) Monitor.

Perhaps Governor Keyes did remind Governor Graham of that claim, but we notice that New Hampshire was desirous of having Vermont pay for one-half of the new structure which bridges the Connecticut at that point, instead of merely paying for the abutment on the Vermont side. New Hampshire was perfectly willing that Vermont should own one-half of the bridge.

Two professional pugilists have recently secured their release from military service at Camp Devens on the ground that they have dependent relatives, while a third pugilist in the same camp got himself sentenced to 20 years in prison for setting upon a corporal who tried to challenge him for returning to camp after hours. Moreover, Jess Willard, so-called champion of the world, has made no forward move to enter the war since last April when he did some press agent work by telegraphing his assistance to President Wilson. To judge by the tone of Willard's message of hope to the president, the heavyweight "pug" was ready to kick the kaiser and his army right away, or just as soon as the president gave the word. Yet weeks and months have passed away, and no Jess Willard in the service of the nation. Then, too, there was the champion of Australia who fled to the United States to escape military service and who died from pneumonia some months ago. There must be something the matter with our professional prizefighters; they are not living up to their profession.

NO LULL IN SHIPBUILDING.

The reduction last week of the toll of British shipping by German submarines should not lull us in the United States into any belief that our duty is anywhere near done; instead, it should spur us on to renewed effort to strangle the U-boat menace beyond all hope of resuscitation. It is probable that the efforts at combatting the peril have been growing in their successful operation during the last few months, but they have by no means reached their ultimate goal and will not reach that goal until shipping from the United States to the ports of our allies is practically free from danger. The United States has a tremendous task of transporting her hundreds of thousands of soldiers to the European battle fronts and then to keep those men supplied with food, equipment and ammunition; so the shipbuilding program in the United States ought not to be decreased one bit because of the belief that shipping is multiplying faster than it is being destroyed by the Germans. Indeed, another week's record of British losses may show that the submarines are fully on the job again; the toll may be well up to the average of the whole time since "piracy without mercy" was first introduced by the German admiralty. There can be no security as long as the war lasts. Of that we may rest assured. We must keep on building ships as fast as our shipyards can turn them out.

WILLIAMSTOWN

The funeral of Charlie Martin Holden, whose death after an illness of several months occurred at 12:05 Tuesday morning, was held from his late residence on the road to Brookfield on Nov. 15. Rev. W. Keeling, pastor of the M. E. church, officiating. The deceased was born in Northfield June 17, 1869, his parents being W. W. Holden and Elizabeth Hanson Holden. His mother lived but a few days and he was taken home by his grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. William Holden, who at that time lived on the farm now owned by John Riddell. He was brought up by his grandparents and in his turn cared for them in their old age as long as they lived. The deceased was twice married, his first wife being Georgiana Kirby of Northfield, who died many years ago, leaving him one son, William F. Holden. He was married in 1900 to Anna Thompson, who with three children survive him. These are, Ellen A., Walter T., and Esther L. During the time of his illness he was a patient sufferer. Floral tributes were a wreath, with the word "Father," Mrs. Holden and children; carnations, Dr. and Mrs. L. W. Hanson; bouquet of roses, Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Thompson; carnations, Mr. and Mrs. B. J. Dunkling; carnations, Mr. and Mrs. George W. Holden, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Poor, Mr. and Mrs. Perley T. Sanders, Mr. and Mrs. Napoleon La Flower. The grammar room at the village school is now composed of the sixth, seventh and eighth grades. Mid-term examinations were lately given and below are the names of the pupils attaining an average over 90 per cent in the different grades. Sixth grade: Edith Pope, Dan Wright, Rollin Bruce, Richard Fernandez, Raymond Martin, Raymond McLeod, Cornelius Irons, Warren Covell and Nelson Wilfore. Seventh grade: Jessie Downs, Ellsworth Morgan, Wayne Farnham, and Harrison Seaver. Eighth grade: Irene Wright, Isabelle Kynoch, Robert Kynoch. Cora B. Kennedy, teacher.

The firm of G. H. McAllister &amp; Co., having received an order for 1,000 Christmas trees, have had a force of men at work in the southeastern part of the town for the past few days engaged in the work of cutting the trees and tying them in bunches for shipment.

Mrs. Roxalana (Townsend) Jockow of Snow returned to her home with her daughter, Mrs. John C. Morgan, of that town yesterday, after a visit of about two weeks to her sister, Mrs. Albert R. Martin, and other relatives.

Clarence H. Bailey is now at work as lumber in one of the stonesheds in Barre and drives to and from his work every day.

Among late additions to the public library are several bound volumes of Harper's and the Century magazines, formerly belonging to the library of the late Frank O. Beckett of Washington, D. C.

Herbert C. Townsend and Harley T. Martin have formed a partnership for the purpose of conducting a garage and auto repair business and will also keep in stock a line of auto supplies.

A Tenements are so scarce in Springfield that Mrs. Charles Passera and family, who lately went to that town to join Louis Passera, who has a good position there, have not yet been able to find one suitable for their needs.

"To have a lively and not a stolid countenance."—Truth of Intercourse.

"The time has come to conquer or submit. For us there is but one choice. We have made it."—President Wilson.

"And Now He's Happy All the Day."

While unloading a carload of corn last Saturday, Ben Watkins of Central street, in grabbing for his pipe that fell, got his right arm mixed up with the hopper in such a way that it broke below the elbow. If Ben didn't get mixed up so as to break a bone or wrench himself somehow he wouldn't be happy.—Newport item.

If Appelmann's loyalty to America is as deep-seated as he proclaimed it to be when the controversy at the state university was at its height, how can he hope to be received with complaisance by the Germans?

Then again if Appelmann's status is such that he is persona grata in Germany how happens it that he has been permitted to remain so long on the faculty at Vermont?

Green Mountain Echoes.

A man has been talking cheese factory with the farmers.—Weston item.

The melancholy days have surely come, bringing strong winds and colder weather.—West Cornwall item.

Stray cattle and high beef make a very tempting combination.—Cristy district item.

Mrs. Willie Spaulding canvassed the Stream Monday with the Hoover pledge and every one of the 21 families signed it.—Twenty Mile Stream item.

Will Grimes went over Saturday to see how Fred Ransom likes farming life. Found him happy.—Fletcher item.

The Parkhurst cat has again disappeared. He is a large Maltese, a great hunter. He ranges the mountain for quite large game, and has been trapped several times. Any trapper finding him will please his owner by reporting.—Weston item.

Bill Pickett says he would like to enlist, but he is cross-eyed and would have to shoot on the bias; besides he has an ingrowing toe nail that would hinder him about running if the Germans should take a notion to chase him.—Cristy district item.

The three-cent stamp is here again. It makes the postage high, sir; But every time we lick that stamp We help to lick the kaiser. —Ludlow Tribune.

We notice by the Barre Telegram that one of the Newbury ladies has completed her sweater. How the good news has spread.—Newbury item.

The gentle philosopher who culls the news from Newbury is reminded that the contemporary whom he quotes has gone to its last, long press.

MAXIMALISTS Will Seek Immediate Peace for All.—Headline. The blood that soaks the fields of Flanders was not shed for a compromise. Do the Bolsheviks understand?

Croak from Cold River.

Reply to the Barre Times.

Surely the past October was beautiful in the extreme, and a Vermontor who didn't have the eyes to see it and a voice to exclaim is no true Vermontor and is not worthy of so meagre a job as "echoing" for the Barre Times. No truer patriot exists to-day than the Vermont Tribune. It is certainly a pen picture of Vermont from start to finish.

"O suns and skies and flowers of June and clouds of June together, Ye cannot rival for one hour October's bright blue weather."

Get me, Barre Times! Nothing odd in this rural item.—Cold River item in The Tribune, Ludlow.

The cor. at Cold River is strangely remote in his arcaic environment. Frequent scanning of "Green Mountain Echoes" has convinced us that it is the rural correspondent who registers good deeds done in quiet places, who tells of commonplace happenings in an intimate, neighborly fashion that the chronicler of town gossip somehow misses. Far from being to ridicule, the purpose of the compiler of "Echoes," as we understand it, is to preserve for a less fortunate audience of readers some of the humanly qualities revealed between the lines of items reported by native-born newsgatherers who garner not for gain but for the love of the garnering.

Yet, with respect to Cold River, we must admit that he is a genius who could write June poetry in as drab an October as ever we knew. He is an optimist, not merely a rhetorician, who stands with lyre clearly attuned while the traveler sees naught but lonely white farmhouses set against gaunt meadows, stark trees, and mayhap dreary wastes of snow.

R. D. No. 2, Randolph, submits the following exhibition from the Braintrust budget: "Kaiser Bill," better known as "Lightning Jack," is still looking for a "skule marm" of ye olden time."

Twenty Years Ago.

Out in Pike county, Ill., a man who is interested in antiques has inserted in The Republican a list of things indigenous to the late 90's. Here's the list:

Ladies wore bustles.
Operations were rare.
Nobody swatted the fly.
Nobody had seen a sly.
Nobody had appendicitis.
Nobody wore white shoes.
Nobody sprayed orchards.
Cream was five cents a pint.

Most young men had "livery" bills. Cantaloupes were muskmelons. You never heard of a "tin Lizzie." Duettes wanted to see your tongue.

The hired girl drew one-fifty a week. Nobody cared for the price of gasoline.

The butcher "threw in" a chunk of liver.

Folks said pneumatic tires were a joke. Nobody "listened in" on a telephone.

Strawstacks were burned instead of baled.

Publishing a country newspaper was not a business.

People thought English sparrows were "birds."

Julius Verne was the only convert to the submarine.

You stuck tubes in your ears to hear a phonograph, and it cost a dime.

Think of any others? M. S.

Music furnished for all occasions by Montpelier M. band orchestra. Karl Forst, manager, phone Montpelier 252-W.
